The largest number in any one dormitory is 20; average, from 1 to 7. All the girls who are capable are employed in housework during the early hours of every day. Seven boys are engaged at farm work, two are in the shoe shop, three are making brooms and mattresses, and a large number are accustomed to the use of shovel and wheelbarrow. The success of the officers in obtaining means of work, material, c., has been poor, and in this department they have failed in the attainment of their wishes. In addition to open air employment, physical training is pursued; directly, in a variety of calisthenics and marching exercises, and, indirectly, in object and other lessons, of the school room, the order and discipline of the tables, c., and it is through these means that mental improvement begins and is continued; the specific object of the teacher being to awaken and intensify the powers of attention. Hence objects, and activity and order in handling them, constitute the basis of the system of mental training. There is a library of about 1,000 volumes, mostly children s stories. Amusement is largely an instrument of education or instruction. Many of the school exercises are really amusements. Independently of these, two evenings in the week, except in hot weather, are assigned to dancing, tableaux, theatricals, games or the stereopticon. Those with sufficient voluntary activity engage in the ordinary recreations of youth. Generally one teacher must participate to form...
