C. : Dept. of Defense, 2011 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)741354228 Subject: Cyberspace -- Government policy -- United States. Excerpt: . . . private synergy. Public-private partnerships will necessarily require a balance between regulation and volunteerism, and they will be built on innovation, openness, and trust. In some cases, incentives or other measures will be necessary to promote private sector participation. DoDs efforts must also extend beyond large corporations to small and medium-sized businesses to ensure participation and leverage innovation. A collaborative national effort will develop common and workable solutions to policy problems that both increase cybersecurity and further the public good. DoD will continue to support the development of whole-of-government approaches for managing risks associated with the globalization of the information and communications technology sector. Many U. S. technology firms outsource software and hardware factors of production, and in some cases their knowledge base, to firms overseas. Additionally, increases in the number of counterfeit products and components demand procedures to both reduce risk and increase quality. Dependence on technology from untrusted sources diminishes the predictability and assurance that DoD requires, and DoD will work with DHS and its interagency partners to better identify and address these risks. The global technology supply chain affects mission critical aspects of the DoD enterprise, along with core U. S. government and private sector functions, and its risks must be mitigated through strategic public-private sector cooperation. Strategic Initiative 4: DoD will build robust relationships with U. S. allies and international partners to strengthen collective cybersecurity. Through its foreign defense relationships, the United States not only helps avert crises but also improves its effectiveness in responding to them. -2010 Quadrennial Defense Review In s. . .
